BusinessOptix makes it effortless to produce work instructions and support documentation for sharing process steps, instructions and guidance with your teams and organization. Get Your Teams on the Same Page

Use BusinessOptix Documentation and Work Instruction tools to:

- Provide your frontline staff (e.g. customer service or operations teams) with access to work instructions to support the use of your processes. As PDFs or online work instructions, they can be delivered as whole documents or snippets of content in context of the task they are completing.
- Share high level and detailed process maps with stakeholders for their review and input; they can annotate comments directly onto the process (no more sending documents via email and hoping that everyone has the latest version).
- Write and share user stories to support development teams. Even link these stories to JIRA so developers can access them in a familiar environment.
- Convert your processes into documentation that helps change managers fully understand changes so they can devise programs to support employees.

Global/Local

For global and multi-national workforces, BusinessOptix helps establish operating procedures, policies and processes that support both consistent central governance and compliance, and localized variations in process flows and languages.
